TO CITIZENS OF CHICAGO

THE ILLINOIS SUPREME COURT filed a decision on February 22, 1922 (302 Ill. 422), holding that the Chicago "department of health" was not authorized by statute, and that the "commissioner of health" had no authority, therefore, "to determine when a contagious and infectious disease exists," nor "to establish a quarantine."

Herman N. Bundesen at the time held the office of commissioner of health, and from that date to the present (August 1923) he has, in defiance of the Supreme Court, continuously usurped the functions of a legal board of health.

Although he and his "department" of subordinates are thus without legal authority even to quarantine a case of measles or to determine the existence of a single case of contagious or infectious disease, he and they have unlawfully "determined" and quarantined, since that decision, approximately 100,000 cases which he has alleged to be infectious or contagious.

In other particulars he has unlawfully exercised the legitimate functions of a board of health. Besides this, he has gone beyond what are probably the legal powers of such boards, because certainly beyond the bounds of reason and human rights. For example, he has seized persons whom he suspects of harboring contagion, has forced upon them tests, and on the verdict of such tests has forced treatment, although both tests and treatment are held in serious question by numbers of physicians, and the treatment is regarded by many persons as more dangerous than the disease itself. Persons out of health, yet able to care for their families, he has forcibly abducted from their homes and confined as prisoners in hospitals. On the strength of one or two cases "determined" by him or his agents to be smallpox, he has unlawfully caused neighboring schools to exclude from attendance their unvaccinated children and teachers—i. e. those uncontaminated with calf-pus. He has undertaken to try to stop disease by a process that would (if it succeeded) make vice comfortable and safe.

In his many unreasonable, arbitrary, and even cruel, acts, as well as in his utter disregard of the law of the State as interpreted by the Supreme Court, Herman N. Bundesen has proved himself unfit to serve in any capacity on the Chicago Board of Health, when such board shall be created, and the fact that he has not yet received appointment reflects credit on the present city government.

Adopted at Fourth Annual Meeting
American Medical Liberty League,
Chicago, October 31, 1922

We demand the abolition of State Medicine as the only remedy for gross wrongs and incredible cruelties perpetrated daily upon citizens by doctors acting in official capacity.

Disease poisons are forced into the bodies of men, women and children, tainting all and crippling and killing some.

Citizens are seized without warrant of law, are by violence and intimidation forced to submit to tests invented by said doctors, and their liberty thereafter is held at the mercy of said doctors.

Citizens thus seized and held are subjected to drastic and dangerous treatment that always impairs health and inevitably shortens life.

Persons suffering or alleged to be suffering with tuberculosis are harassed and hounded, mothers are torn from their families, the babe is wrested from its mother's arms, the homes thus invaded are broken up and scattered, and the anguish of mind inflicted upon these sufferers adds to the horrors of disease and lessens the chance of recovery.

Our public schools are invaded, and not content with poisoning the bodies of our young people, official doctors and their tools the so-called school or public health nurses poison the minds of our children, instilling fear and a dependence upon vaccines and serums to ward off the attacks of an imaginary disease germ, which is depicted before the impressionable child as a hideous monster more dangerous than the wild beast of the jungle.

Countless numbers of the lower animals, including the three great friends of man, the dog, the horse and the cow, are

While the world war was on there undoubtedly was a need for many drastic rules which were put into force by health authorities because the efficiency of the nation's man power was at stake. The war is over, and now we should return as nearly as is possible to normal. Certainly the constitution of the United States which grants freedom from oppression to all should be lived up to, and oppressive health laws or health regulations that were put in force during the emergency should now be rescinded or repealed.

I feel that many an injustice was done during the war which I excuse because of the exigencies of impending disaster which controlled the minds of all of us.

Too much stress is being put on the dangers of venereal diseases by health officers who pay no attention to the time when the disease was contracted or whether it may be active or chronic at the time of examination. Especially is this true of syphilis. Many found to be suffering from this disease are not in an infective state, but are suffering from the end results of the disease rather than from the disease itself. I am

The infringement of personal liberty by the medical profession is steadily increasing and before very long the only persons outside of graves, jails, asylums and hospitals will be doctors, nurses, undertakers and policemen.

Alphonze Cotils, a robust Belgian baker of New York City, enjoying rosy cheeks and the best of health, was recently forbidden by the Board of Health to enter his own bakeshop because eighteen years ago he had typhoid fever. As he refused to obey this equitable order he was arrested and tried before an enlightened Municipal Court judge, who, drawing inspiration from the spirit of '76, ruled that Cotils must keep away from his bakeshop, refrain from handling breadstuffs and must not even sit at his cash register and make change for customers. During the trial, which might more appropriately have been held at Rouen or at Salem, it developed that one hundred and nineteen persons are now branded by the doctors as typhoid "carriers," kept under surveillance and regularly inspected.

Nor is the "carrier" verdict restricted to those who harbor typhoid germs. In Lebanon, Pa., there recently occurred several deaths from diphtheria, among them eight children in two families belonging to a religious sect calling themselves "Faith Tabernacle." The members of this sect believe that God has power to cure all diseases and that prayers and not doctors are the proper remedies. Whether or not they accept the

Joseph H. S. Johnson deposes and says,—

I am a legally qualified physician and live at 1518 North Washtenaw Avenue, City of Chicago, aforesaid County and State, and am associated with Dr. Margaret C. B. Johnson (my wife) and Dr. Virginia Johnson (our daughter) in the practice of medicine, and that I graduated in Medicine in 1883, and have lived in this house 33 years.

On the 11th of June, 1920, we were called to attend Harry Sadowsky at 2061 North Hoyne Avenue, in aforesaid city, county and state, and that Dr. Margaret C. B. Johnson went to care for him, and we were told that he died on Sunday the 13th following at 4 o'clock p. m. city time, and Dr. M. C. B. Johnson did sign a certificate of death, for the deceased, on that day, giving as cause of the death TYPHOID FEVER, and the next morning Felix Sztermer, an undertaker at 2073 N. Hoyne Ave., called and said the Health Department refused to give a burial permit that gave TYPHOID FEVER as cause of death, and then Dr. M. C. B. Johnson did phone to the Health Department and asked why they would not issue the permit, and I overheard the man at the phone say, "Because we have spent too much money chlorinating the water, and we will not issue it, unless you change it."

Later several others called up and each one demanded that we change it. A man saying his name was Dr. Rinehardt said the same thing, and then a man who said he was Dr. Bundesen, Health Commissioner,* called up and said the same thing, or words to that effect. Dr. M. C. B. said to them, "If I made out a false certificate, you would put me in jail, wouldn't you?" Dr. Bundesen said, "Yes." Then she said, "Now you want me to make out a false certificate to accommodate you so you can make people believe your chlorine in the water prevents TYPHOID, do you? I never will." Dr. Bundesen also called up about four o'clock in the morning,

Why They're For Coolidge

Something has happened within the week to emphasize the real reason why President Coolidge possesses the confidence of the people and why they do not want him to retire from the high position which he holds. In some quarters it has been explained that the country is demanding the renomination of Calvin Coolidge because it believes that his reelection will he reassuring to business and industry and will be a mighty factor for the continuance of prosperity. This is true, but there is a larger reason why the people are for him. It is because of the Coolidge genius for interpreting and defending the landmarks and traditions of American government that the people look with apprehension upon any proposal in these times to put any other hand at the helm of American administration.

For example, on every hand of late years there has been an organized effort to centralize governing powers into the control of bureaucracies. Cities and counties have lost their home rule right in local government, and this power has been delegated to the state. By the same token, there has been a subtile movement to transfer the powers of state governments to federal control. The one clear voice at Washington in protest against this perversion of the checks and balances which the founders of the nation imposed for protection of the people has been that of Calvin Coolidge.

Yesterday a bill was brought to the president's desk which in the name of "providing for the coordination of the public health activities of the government, and for other purposes," undertook to set up a new hureaucracy with power in many respects independent of and superior to those of the executive. President Coolidge promptly vetoed the measure. He found no fault with some of the measures intended by the hill, but he would not stand for a further centralization of power already too far advanced for the good of the republic. His veto message, of course, was ignored by most of the newspapers, and did not receive a tithe of the attention from the populace that was lavished upon a lightweight prizefighter at New York not very long since by one screamer defined as Babe Ruth's "thirteenth homer orgy!" But the stand taken by the president was no less wise and courageous. He said:

"This Act contravenes Section 2, Article 2, of the Constitution of the United States in that it creates offices of the United States to be filled by appointment by the president with the advice and consent of the senate, and at the same time not only limits the choice of appointees to such offices to persons who possess the qualifications of passing an examination conducted by a board of officers convened by the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, but also limits the choice among individuals possessing such qualifications to persons who are recommended by such board and by the Surgeon General; thereby attempting to vest in such board and in the Surgeon General participation in the executive function of appointment of officers of the United States, which function can be vested in and exercised only by the president with the advice and consent of the senate, the president alone, the courts of law and heads of departments. I am not unmindful of the primary purpose of this bill to coordinate the public health activities of the government, and the importance of enlarging the facilities of the public health service to enable it to deal more effectively with federal health problems. But for some time past there has been a definite movement among various groups of government professional and scientific employes toward militarization of their respective services, and I am impelled to oppose this movement from the standpoints of both economical administration and public policy. From an economic standpoint, the method of appointment of the civilian personnel should be such that the force of government employes can be increased or decreased as the needs of the service or condition of the treasury make necessary. But more important still, I do not believe that permanency of appointment of those engaged in the professional and scientific activities of the government is necessary for progress or accomplishment in those activities, or in keeping with public policy."

This message came upon the heels of the president's address at the sesqui-centennial of Phillips Academy at Andover, in which he summoned the patriotic thought and strength of the nation to defend civil rights derived from the founders, instead of making a craven surrender of them. These words of his should live:

"Our country and its Government belongs to all the people. It ought not to be under the domination of any one element or any one section. For it to fail under the entire control of the people of wealth or people of poverty, of people who are employers or people who are wage earners, would be contrary to our declared principles. They should all be partakers in the responsibilities and benefits, and all be represented in the administration of our government. Those who are charged with the conduct of our affairs should be equally solicitous for the welfare of all localities and all classes. There should be no outlaws and no favorites, but all should be beneficiaries of the common good through the discharge of common duties. In these days, when there is so large an amount of delegated power, the danger increases that the average citizen may take too much for granted. Because the affairs of his country have been progressing satisfactorily, he may think nothing can change their course. Such is not the case. When the country makes progress it is because some one gives it careful attention and direction, and because the people are contented, industrious and law-abiding, and as a whole are discharging their duties of citizenship.

What better definition could be made of the spirit of free government and the responsibilities of citizenship? It is because they do not want to lose the leadership of a man whose every act of public service is grounded upon this rock of safe American principles that the people will insist upon keeping Calvin Coolidge in the White House. They are all the more persuaded to this course when they look over the assortment of mysteries and appetites, the traders and camp-followers of the counter politics, who are eager and clamorsome candidates for his place.

Medical Liberty Plank for the Democratic Party Platform 1928

Medical liberty is as vital to a free people as religious liberty, and should be as complete in all respects.

Brief Argument for Medical Liberty Plank

The institution of State Medicine has grown to such huge proportions as to be the most oppressive feature Americans have ever had to deal with. As witness:—

On the plea of the public health, State Medicine continually invokes the police power to compel citizens and their domestic animals to take its prescriptions. It thereby nullifies important guaranties in the Bill of Rights, denying to the citizen the ownership of his own body and the ownership of his own property. This is at once human slavery and confiscation of property.

State Medicine restricts, harasses and persecutes practitioners of the healing art who do not belong or conform to its school, as State Religion has persecuted her heretics in the past.

For these monopolistic and discriminatory "services," State Medicine absorbs millions from the tax levies annually.

There is a steadily growing resentment toward medical tyranny exercised by the Government. It is finding voice among farmers who have been robbed of their livestock through the enforcement of a sectarian medical theory. It is finding voice increasingly among citizens whose sound health is an offense to State Medicine, which insists upon inoculating vaccine virus and other poisons into their bodies. In a word, there is a rising tide of resentment among the millions of Medical Dissenters who object to being forced to support a system in which they have no faith and for which they have no use, and who more than all else object to being forced to submit to what they regard as vicious and highly dangerous practices.

Call To Tenth Annual Meeting American Medical Liberty League

Addressed to All Members and Friends

The Tenth Annual Meeting of the American Medical Liberty League will be held at Hotel Tuller, Detroit, Michigan, on the three days beginning Sunday (afternoon), November 11, and continuing through Monday and Tuesday, a total of four sessions and banquet, with, probably, a sight-seeing trip taking the time usually devoted to the fifth session.

At this beginning of the League's second decade, the most important convention is expected that we have ever held.

A program is preparing around the general theme, "Making Them Sick of It."

The doctors who have assumed the right to dictate to citizens through the government in all that relates to the personal health (and what does not?) have had their road made too smooth.

Methods of great simplicity are probably practicable by which the "way" of these transgressors can be made as "hard" as Holy Writ intends. They will then be inclined to drop the role of civil dictator and return to the practice of their legitimate profession. By creating such a tendency, we give them a chance to "save face," while our task, too, is made easier.

From the resolved and really able group we look to see gathered at this convention, much can be expected in the way of inspiration, new facts, encouraging points of view.

All to whom this notice is sent are interested and desire to help the League in its good work. Many methods are open, but just now two are pressing:

1. Come to the meeting if possible.

2. Send us your pledge now to help carry on the work for the coming year.

The chief work is still educational, requiring money to prepare, print and distribute. Field work languishes for lack of funds. Calls for help reach us daily, the best response to which is to enable the oppressed to help themselves, which is done through advice, encouragement and printed matter, all which takes time (which is money) and money to deliver. We are making every dollar count in work done.

Please use the form below to indicate your intentions, detach and mail it at once.

DRUGLESS DOCTORS, BEWARE!!!

Reprinted from "How to Live," December, 1930.

Never resting in its efforts to crush all competition, never halting in its work to monopolize the field of health and disease, the Medical Trust of America, that powerful menace to human health, that prolific propagator of disease, is constantly going before the various law-making bodies and asking for more laws to serve its own covetous designs.

Jubilant with the success of having enacted into law in the state of Arkansas, the pernicious Basic Science Bill, the Arkansas Branch of the Medical Trust of America is now preparing to go before the next Legislature of that state and ask for certain Amendments to the Bill, the intent of which is to give the Trust greater control in the field of health and disease.

From a reader of our magazine residing at Little Rock, Ark., we have received the following:

"Proposed Amendments to the Arkansas Basic Science bill as sponsored by the A. M. A. are as follows:

1. That all branches of healing shall have at least five years in a grade "A" college approved by the American Medical Association.
2. That no other method of healing shall be permitted to diagnose or prescribe for a patient.
3. That the Alopathic physician shall have charge of contagious diseases, and sign all certificates pertaining to schools, deaths and health.
4. That Chiropractors and Osteopaths shall not diagnose nor use any instruments, such as X-Ray, diagnostic lights, nor shall they diagnose by palpation or by oral examination.
5. That Osteopaths shall not attend contagious patients only under the direct supervision of a licensed Alopathic physician.
6. That Chiropractors shall not attend contagious patients only under the direct supervision of the County Health Officer, and he shall attend the case each time the Chiropractor visits the patient.
7. That Chiropractors shall report each case to the County Health Officer; and the County Health Officer shall inspect the case, and at the end of each month the County Health Officer shall report to the State Board of Health the cases that Chiropractors have attended."

There is the line of battle. Are the Drugless Doctors of Arkansas ready for the fray? Marshal your forces and friends, Drugless Doctors of Arkansas, and show the foes of Medical Freedom that you challenge the right of any band of men to force you to become their puppets and slaves.

By what right does the medical profession of America say to the Drugless Doctors of this country, You shall not treat the sick only under our direction and supervision?

By what right does the medical profession of America say to the people of this country, You shall not be treated by a doctor of your choice except under our direction and supervision?

By what right does the medical profession of America dare to set itself up as the guardian of Drugless Doctors and the sick and suffering under their care?

Any such attempt is un-American and undemocratic. Being such, it should be resisted to the last man.

May the Spirit of American Liberty spur you on to the battle which threatens your existence and your freedom.

May the Spirit of American Liberty spur you on to the fray which means freedom if you win and slavery if you lose.

What would you do, Mr. Drugless Doctor, if such Amendments were introduced in your legislature?

PLATFORM

WE again declare our adherence to the principle of Medical Liberty equal to what America understands as Religious Liberty.

Medical Liberty Defined

2. Medical Liberty herein signifies the following:—

(a) Full liberty of choice as to system and practitioner of healing.

(b) Hence, the right of the practitioner to serve those who call him.

(c) Entire discontinuance of the use of public funds for the support of medical schools, medical boards and bureaus, and medical officials of every kind.

(d) The opening of public hospitals and all public institutions to reputable practitioners of all forms of healing on equal terms at the pleasure of patients or inmates— in case of minors or incompetents, of their guardians.

Our Single Object

3. We demand the abolition of the medical establishment in the United States Government and its subdivisions (even as the institution of the church in the government has been abolished) as the only logical, safe and economical road to the enjoyment of the natural and constitutional rights above enumerated.

State Medicine as it exists today is a monstrous system of tyranny, oppression and plain theft. It exploits the helpless, especially children, the employed class, and the sick. It binds and gags its own practitioners. It uses enormous sums of money taken from the taxpayers to salary its hirelings who in turn labor for its extension. It commands the powerful influence of the press through the prestige of its official position and its vast endowments.. By these means, too, and its appropriation of the police power of the State on the impudent but long-held claim that its own practices and practitioners alone are scientific and soundly based, even the courts, the final bulwark of the citizen's rights, are often impressed and succumb as to a hypnotic spell.

One reason the British lost and we won the Revolutionary War, was because WE DID OUR OWN FIGHTING, WHILE THE BRITISH HAD TO HIRE MERCENARIES.

This thought occurs to me in connection with appeals and complaints from people who expect "the League," by which they vaguely imply the central office, or the Board of Directors, or somebody besides themselves, to do their fighting for them.

Organization, with everybody striving to do all he can in that organized effort, is what WINS.

National organization to rid the country of a Nation-wide pest with its center in the Nation's capital and its roots in a nationally organized A. M. A., is the prime necessity in organization. Everybody whose opinion is worth having knows it. And the local work everywhere, if done in an orderly and successful manner, has to be done by locals (the League calls them Chapters), or by individuals carrying on work in concert with other workers—the concert being secured through the League's official journal the Truth-Teller and the leaflets and circulars issued by the League.

The League's Dues stick in the craw of some uninformed or thoughtless people. They point to organizations that have dues of $1. They do not know (or perhaps stop to think) that such organizations are ALWAYS one of two things: Either they are entirely pauperized organizations carrying on wholly on money donated to save THEIR (the $1 fellows') hides; or else such organizations are only organizations in name. The idea and ideal of the League is, that it shall come as near to self-support and equal division of the burden as is practicable. It is an ideal we are far from attaining, for the donations of generous friends are required to keep us going and doing in a way at all satisfactory. Therefore every one who is only a dues-payer does not actually carry himself as a member of this exceedingly ambitious and aggressive organization; but if he cannot do more—even if he will not—it is agreed that $5 per year shall constitute him a member in good standing of a proud and going body, of which HE should be proud to be a member.

Who are the Quacks?

WILLIAM HOWARD HAY, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

What is a "quack?" Medically speaking a quack is everyone hut us, the regular school of medicine. No one who is not a graduate of a modern medical school is free from the odium of quackery, from the regular, classical, orthodox standpoint. Isn't this true?

Let us put the definition of "quack" a little more broadly, not limiting it to outlawed cults. From the broader viewpoint a quack is anyone who pretends to he something which he is not, or one who is not able to do what he claims to do, especially if he takes money for this pretense.

From this broader view how many of us are there who can escape the suspicion of quackery?

If we should tell the absolute truth as we see it how often would we he compelled to say to a patient: "I do not know what is the matter with you, and not knowing this, I am in no position to treat you intelligently"?

If we were honest how many patients would we have? They would all leave us for the quacks, and we would be left holding the bag, as it were. We know this, and all unconsciously we are compelled to assume an air of wisdom and pronounce judgment on maladies for which we are consulted, well knowing that if the case escape us and go to someone else our opinion is in danger, for it is a well known fact that if a case is not perfectly plain (and most cases are NOT plain), should such case go to a hundred different regular, well-informed physicians he would get nearly as many different diagnoses, the same number of different prognoses, and still more different plans of treatment.

We know this, I say, and we unconsciously protect ourselves hy assuring the patient positively that we understand his condition very well, in or-

LETTER OF ADVICE TO MEMBERS

The first thing to do is to ORGANIZE THE THOUGHT OF A COMMUNITY. This can be most successfully done without intruding any personality into the work. Post our sticker "Refuse and Resist" daily. Always go supplied and when there is a chance, paste one up! The text on this sticker is merely a call to return to the Constitution, to cease giving help to medical tyranny by yielding to it. It appeals to good Americans. This sticker was a factor in obtaining the famous "Chicago Ordinance."

Select as many outstanding and promising local people as you can take care of with a mailing a fortnight for six months or a year. Fit each with the right folder, card or leaflet to start with, and sending one at a time keep it up. When using The Truth-Teller, mark the article you most wish read. If you pick the wrong person, drop him and pick another. Send nothing to medical opponents, nor to any opponents when you know them. Nothing is gained by irritating the enemy in private. Our purpose is to arouse our friends and move them to action. The country is full of them.

If you have any organizing instinct, enlist others in the work you are doing as fast as they come to light. Posting the sticker and scattering around "Attention, Citizens" ALWAYS bring inquiries to this office. Let this office know of your work and we will send you the names as fast as they turn up. Furthermore if you are diligent your turning of the thought of people in this direction will cause them to talk about it and there is another opening for you. It is a mistake to try to convert friends by arguing with them. If you want to bring them to your view on this subject, when an opening offers state your position and do it vigorously. If they disagree, drop the subject, and do not return to it unless they do. Put something mild in their way to read, or else something telling of a specially atrocious performance of medical health officers. Do not nag or pester them. They will ALWAYS come over when they see the facts clearly. And when they do, forget that you had anything to do with their change of heart.

Local conditions will tell you when a public meeting can be held with success. Do not attempt one until you can expect a fair-sized crowd.

When you have picked up five or more members to the League, it is a good idea to organize a League Committee and continue and extend the agitation until you have enough for a promising Chapter. A Chapter may be formed with as few as ten members, but unless there is a dependable group to attend meetings it is better to enroll from 30 to 50 before organizing. Committee meetings should be held in private homes and open only to members and such other persons as desire to be genuinely helpful. Give out no publicity about your membership.

You represent locally the American Medical Liberty League, and if you have occasion to protest an action of your local officials, do it AS THE AMERICAN MEDICAL LIBERTY LEAGUE IN_____ (your town).

So with a Committee. IT IS THE LEAGUE in _____. It should watch the moves of "health", city and school officials and check inimical action. NEVER recognize a medical official as such by protesting to him, but protest to your Mayor or City Council.

The appearance of the sticker and leaflets about will have a protective effect, because they give warning to medical tyranny that the League is present in your community. USE the League, thus, and you have a powerful weapon. STUDY League literature and The Truth-Teller and make League influence felt. We gain, but shall gain faster with every new worker. Keep us posted. We will give helpful publicity to gains in medical liberty in your town.

For Medical Liberty on the Same Basis as Religious Liberty

To Farmers of Redwood County, Minnesota and Elsewhere:

Q. Do you own your livestock? Or does "the government" own it?

A. The Constitution of the U.S. says you do. See Amendments, Arts. IV. and V.

Q. What laws can Congress make?

A. Only such laws as do not conflict with the Constitution.

Q. What laws can State Legislature make?

A. Only State laws that do not conflict with the U.S. Constitution.

When and where have the People ever decreed that certain Veterinarians, County Agents, and other officials shall have authority to seize your livestock, punch into the animals a disease-product they call tuberculin, and when it suits them to do so send the animals away to slaughter, while you get paid a fraction of their value, and have to contribute a large share of that money yourselves! No; the People are not guilty!

Listen to the words of Floyd E. Thompson, Justice of the Illinois Supreme Court:-

"Congress cannot by its own voice create laws and give them authority. When a law lacks the authority of conscience and public opinion it lacks the qualities to make it effective in a self-governing commonwealth.

"Those who would force tyranny on us want to make us subjects of the Nation. We are not subjects. We are the sovereign rulers of the country.

"IF A LAW IS CONSIDERED BAD, IT MUST BE ATTACKED, AND WAR CANNOT BE MADE FEEBLY."

Our little would-be rulers tell us to keep still and be good, because the great U.S. Govt. is behind this thing and therefore it must be right.

Keeping still did not free the slaves. Keeping still did not knock the lid off Teapot Dome. When the Tuberculin Test Conspiracy is fully uncovered, Teapot Dome in comparison will pale into insignificance. Even African slavery, wicked and cruel as it was, did not equal in wickedness the medical, veterinary and bureaucratic slavery which has a whole people in its grip.

WE KNOW WHAT WE ARE TALKING ABOUT.

The printed matter we issue on the Tuberculin Test needs no defense. It carries conviction BECAUSE IT IS CONFIRMED IN THE EXPERIENCE OF THE FARMERS. Every farmer and every milk consumer should

A PROFESSIONAL PROTEST

Reforms in Medical Ethics and Methods Demanded by the Former President of the Ohio Medical Society

Several questions of interest to laymen as well as to members of the medical profession were candidly dealt with by Dr. J. F. Baldwin, A.M., M.D., F.A.C.S., of Columbus, Ohio, before the Ohio Medical Society at the close of his three years' term as president of that society.

Dr. Baldwin has attained an eminence in his profession which made his comments momentous, he being Surgeon-in-Chief to Grant Hospital, Consulting Surgeon to Children's Hospital, Fellow of the American Association of Obstetricians, Gynecologists and Abdominal Surgeons, and retiring president of his own State Medical Association.

The address in question was delivered in June, 1920, but was not published until last autumn.

By way of introduction to his address, Dr. Baldwin says: "I was probably the only president of that association who did not want the position; and I accepted the nomination only when it was put up to me in 1917, as a patriotic duty because of our entry into the World War. I had three years for the preparation of my address, and I early decided that it should not consist of glittering generalities, platitudes and bromides, which usually characterize such addresses. I wished it to contain strong meat for men, not milk and water for babes."

"Anesthesia Fatalities"

Under the sub-title "Anesthesia Fatalities," the doctor says: "In this day of multiplicity of hospitals and vast increase in surgical operations, the subject of anesthesia becomes one of very great importance, and one which should be discussed frankly and honestly, since we all have a common object in using that anesthetic agent which is on the whole safest and best. If one agent is better for one class of operations, and another for another class, the exact facts should be known, that a proper selection may be made. For several years past we have been hearing much about the advantages of nitrous oxide when combined with oxygen. Unfortunately, however, there has been a significant and alarming absence of candor in the presentation of the claims of this agent, since with significant unanimity those who administer it are failing to report their fatalities.

Teter, of Cleveland, in a personal communication, informed me some years ago that he knew of twenty-six fatalities, none of which had been reported; and I have learned of a number of fatalities in Cleveland since the time he made that communication—but I have seen no reports of those deaths. Gwathmey, of New York, in a personal communication, told me that he knew of from twenty to forty deaths, none of which had been reported. Dr. Morgan, of Chicago, assured me some months ago that he did not think there was a general hospital in that city that had not had one or more fatalities, but none of them reported. He told me that, at a convention of anesthetists, he urged them to report their fatalities, but his suggestion fell on deaf ears. Personally, I reported some time ago more than a dozen deaths which had occurred in Columbus, the death rate being about one to every 100 administrations. That report practically put an end to the use of nitrous oxide in general surgery in Columbus; but I have learned of one fatality since.

You probably all look upon The Journal of the American Medical Association as an open forum for the discussion of all matters of professional interest, but you will look in vain through its columns for adverse reports on the subject of nitrous-oxide-oxygen, or for papers condemning in any way its use.

Very recently it was announced that there is to be organized in the near future, a 'National Anesthesia Research Society.' The objects of the organization are stated under ten heads, but I would suggest that the most important object of this society, but one not even referred to in these ten heads, should be the collection and publication of all anesthesia fatalities.

What is the death rate of spinal anesthesia? Of colonic anesthesia? Of nitrous-oxide-oxygen anesthesia? If this society is to be formed let it come with a complete record. Let us have an honest and full report of all fatalities."

The doctor is unquestionably right. At the same time, let us have an honest and full report of all fatalities resulting from vaccinations, the Schick test and toxin-antitoxin inoculations, and other risky medical experiments.

"Placebos or Camouflage"

In the portion of his address dealing with schools of healing, which he referred to as "cults," Dr. Baldwin had this to say:

"It would be well, I think, for the profession to carefully study the situation to see what are the reasons for this undesirable condition; perhaps there is a beam in our own eye which should be removed before we undertake to remove the mote from the eye of another.

A few years ago I saw a patient late at night in consultation with three of our best physicians, two of whom had been treat-

Dr. Garth Wilkinson on Medical Liberty

(Dr. James John Garth Wilkinson, (1812-1880), after medical studies which admitted him to the Royal College of Surgeons (1834), became convinced of the correctness of homeopathic medicine and settled down to its practice. He was a writer on philosophical and medical subjects, attracting attention as early as 1840 by the originality of his philosophic intellect. A friend of Emerson and Henry James the elder. Emerson declared some of his discourses threw all contemporary philosophy of England in the shade. An intimate of Carlyle, Froude, Dickens and Tennyson. Versed in Icelandic and Scandinavian literature. Traveled. Visited America about 1850. A strong opponent of vaccination; also of vivisection. In later life wrote much on medical and social topics.—Dictionary of National Biography, Edited by Sidney Lee, the MacMillan Company, 1900.)

Competition will be the soul of success in medicine as it is in every other case.

* * * *

Engineering or chemistry, protected—or, what is the same thing, arrested—by the State, would stiffen into Chinese imitation, and their soul, which is invention, would be lost; their worldly motive power, which is ambition, unbounded by other men's power, would be lost; and their huge sense of freedom, in which they live and move and have their being, would be exchanged for the degrading consciousness of the powdered head and well-fitted livery of the State.

* * * *

But medicine must be emancipated, and the public will have to do the work.

* * * *

Yet I would willingly calm the apprehensions of all professional brethren.

* * * *

Not a college, sect, or diploma will perish when medicine is free from State patronage and protection. The only power medical bodies will lose will be the power of harming other bodies, or people not of their way of thinking.

* * * *

But would I commit the lives of the community to the possible intervention of uneducated men?

* * * *

That, I answer, is the very thing which obtains at present, and which I would invoke freedom to help me to avoid.

Have We A Medical Trust?

From a remarkably discerning and hugely entertaining article by V. M. Taylor, M. D., Springfield, Ill., entitled "Have We a Medical Trust?" in the North American Journal of Homeopathy for Februsry, 1921, the following extracts and abstracts are presented:—

"Briefly defined, a trust is an industrial combination, not within itself a legal or natural monopoly, hnt has thrown off the restraint of competition hy absorhing, overawing or crushing its legitimate competitors."

Dr. Taylor then refers to the ahle exposures of the Coal Oil Trust, to the proofs produced in a Federal Court of hundreds of law violations, to the fines of $29,400,000 assessed, and finally to the slight impression it all made on the puhlic.

"If it is as difficnlt as that to impress on the puhlic the facts concerning a trust as ohvious and tangihle as the Oil Trust, evidently visnalizing a medical trust that is made up of aliases and camonflage would necessarily he mostly a matter of metaphors, or evidence more circumstantial than direct.

"'National Association for the Relief and Prevention of Tuherculosis, and for edncational work along the lines of prevention.' This captivating title has euphony enough to convey the impression that it is a hlend of all the good inherent in philanthropy, benevolence and humanitarianism. A hrief encyclopedia notice of this association says, It has sixty directors, one-third of whom are laymen. (Ont italics.)

ONE HEAD OF THE HYDRA

"To anyone interested in visualizing and finding a definite head of the medical trust, I want to suggest that the place for the vigilant eye is this 'Association for the relief and prevention of tuberenlosis and educational work along the lines of prevention.'

"Some very eminent citizens are found among its lay directors, hut they prohahly serve no other pnrpose than windshields or catspaws.

"This association says in a recent annual report, that for the year preceding it had collected and dishnrsed in its pretended two-fold work of relieving the tubercular and educating the puhlic along the lines of prevention, twenty-five million dollars.

"The purpose of this association being ostensihly to treat and deal with existing tubercnlar cases, and edncate the puhlic in the means of prevention, makes it evident that forty medical men on the hoard of directors, out of a total of sixty, wonld formulate the policies and the ends to be ohtained, while the twenty laymen are so much filigree for camouflaging pnrposes.
